WOMEN EMPOWERMENT

by

Abhilasha Aid Society

In Indian women have usually occupied a lower status in the family as well as in the social milieu. It is a fact that women continue to be discriminated against different factors such as sex-ratio, maternal mortality- which is the highest in the world- illiteracy and poor socio-economic status. Crime against women in India is on the rise. In our society women are expected to perform their roles as a mother, sister and wife. Her social responsibility seems to be confined to be reproduction and socially approved domain where, as a women, she is deprived on her basic minimum rights. Gender inequality manifests in many forms in all spheres of life such as social, economics, health, participation in decision making for children's education, daughter's marriage, on in politics.

HEALTH CHECKUP CAMP

by

Abhilasha Aid Society

NGOs like ours now work closely with the Department of Health and Family Welfare for improving the condition of public healthcare facilities. The Department now has some set goals, such as -

Maintain a regular supply of essential drugs.

Improve the infrastructure of the basic health units.

Execution of healthcare programmes.

Organize regular inoculation programmes like Hepatitis B, polio etc.

Work towards establishment of medical education institutions and research, nursing schools etc.

With the gradual improvement of the government's healthcare facilities, especially in the rural areas, we also have put more emphasis in creating awareness amongst the people to take advantage of these facilities in greater numbers.

The organization provided free health checkup to the poor, needy women and children. The family planning operations both male and female are done by doctor's with the nominal charges of Rs. 100/- each patient. The camp also provided proper information to the pregnant women and infants about nutritious food and medicines.
